Gen-Shor Wounds .- Dr. Raphael, Professor of Surgery in the New-York Medical College, No. 90 East Thirteenth street, lectures to-day at 12 m., at the College, on gun-shot wounds. He will expose some popular fallacies in regard to such wounds, and vail impart such knowledge as may be of practical be nefit to unprofessional persons. The subject is one about which educated military men are supposed to know something, but of which volunteer officers rice almost necessarily ignorant. It would be well, and save, perhaps, many lives, if every one of the latter class now in this city should hear Dr. Raph sel to-day, and learn how to treat a gun-shot wound i's an emergency.

FOURTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE FULTON-STREET PRAYER MEETING .- The fourth anniversary of the Fulton-street Prayer Meeting veas celebrated at the North Dutch Church yesterday afternoon. The building was crowded throughout, the audience being largely composed of ladies. The exercises were varied and interesting, short addresse a and short prayers alternating. The Rev. Dr. 6 flette commenced the ex-ercises, which were participated in by the Rev. Dr. Cutler, the Rev. Dr. Parker, the Rev. Dr. Hague, the Rev. Mr. Taylor, the Rev. Dr. Blair, the Rev. Mr. Gause, Mr. W. E. Do age, Mr. Whitmore and others. The pleasant hour was closed by the vast congregation singing the doxology. Dr. Gillette prosounced the

The editorial claurge of Frank Levile's Illustrated Newspaper has been put into the hands of the Hon. E. G. Squier. Mr. Squier is a writer of great vigor, freshness, and independence, and though hitherto not widely known as a newspaper writer, is no stranger to journalism. FIFTH M EETING OF THE CHARTER COMMISSION. Sixteen members of the Charter Commission assembled in the Councilmen's Room, yesterday, at 21 p. m., President, Wm. M. Evarte in the chair. George Purser was elected to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. August Belmont's continued absence in Europe. President Ewarts announced the following Standing Committeer:

Mayevalty-Messrs. Tiemann, White, Dillon, Williamson, and Pareoff.

Logislature-Messrs. Hoffman, Froment, Purdy, Marshall, Stillwell and Brainard

Faccistics—Messrs. Blunt, Purdy, Tucker, Chanler, Sweeney, and Goald.

Finance-Messrs. Allen, Hunt, Butler, Carrigan, Jackson, and

The following resolution, offered by Mr. Froment, was, with a communication from the Croton Aqueduct Board, referred to the Executive Committee:

Resided, The this Commission deem it inexpedient to so amend the Charter as to include the Police Department, Department of Fublic Charities and Correction and Almhouse; also, the Courtel Park Commissioners, they having been provided for by special acts of the Deglalature. After which the Commission adjourned until Friday, the 27th, at 3 p. m. THE NEW COURT-HOUSE IN THE PARK .- A description, from the architect's drawings, of the new Court-House for which ground has just been broken on the Chambers-street end of the Park, is interesting enough to be read by that portion of the public who are in the habit of daily passing the City Hall. The dimensions of the Court-House are to be 244 feet in extreme length, 112 feet wide in the center portion. and 146 feet wide at each end, where there are two wings like those of the City Hall. The architecture is of the Corinthian order, though not elaborated in all the details. In many respects the Court House will resemble the City Hall. The center portion and wings are of the same shape; the wide massive stone steps in front are alike, and the rotunds and dome in the center are of a similar design; but on going up stairs there will be found two separate flights, leading to disconnected portions of the building, and situated in contrary directions from the rotunda. There will be a basement story of 12 feet in hight; the first story will be 22 feet, and the second 26 feet; beside which there will be an attic of 10 feet in the center portion. The finest feature, architecturally, of the new Court-House, will be its lofty, roomy, chaste and magnificent rotunda, which is 70 feet in hight from apex to base, and 52 feet wide, the roof being principally of glass, to afford plenty of light and ventilation in the court-rooms from the interior. With reference to the accommodations provided, we may state that the smallest of the court-rooms are 32x42 feet, and the largest 46x50. A number of smaller rooms will afford conveniences to judges, juries, and counselors. A portion of the attic will be devoted to the keeping of old documents. The B ard of Supervisors is fortunate enough to have

CITY MORTALITY.-The number of deaths in the city and county last week was 374, being a decrease of 73 from the previous week, and of 6 from the corresponding week last year. Of 208 deaths from acute disease, there were 37 cases of cholera infantum, 29 infantile convulsions, 22 diarrhes, 16 inflammation of the bowels, 10 inflammation of the kidneys, 10 inflammation of the lungs, 8 scarlet and 8 typhoid fever. Of 144 deaths from chronic disease, 52 were cases of consumption, 39 infantile marasmus, 10 dropsy in the head, heart disease. Of 22 deaths from external and other causes, 7 were premature birth, and 5 cases of drown-

PATAL RAILHOAD ACCIDENT AT YONKERS .- On Menday morning a Germen named Adam Smith, ac companied by his wife and daughter, a laughing little creature, wild with delight at the prospect of a day in the country, landed from the steamboat Armenia at On his way to the Palisade Quarries in which he was employed, while waiting to cross the river, he incautiously stood upon the railroad track; the 8 o'clock down express train came thundering along, but the man's back was toward it, and he did not see his danger.

The engineer blew his whistle furiously, but the poor fellow was deaf, so the warning was worthless to him, and in a few seconds more the locomotive struck him in the side, breaking his arm and hurling him high into the air. He fell head foremost upon a pile of stones, crushing his akull and killing him instantly.

The body was kinely cared for by the people of the place, and the Coroner summoned. Meanwhile the wife and little daughter, instead of accompanying him to the scene of his daily toil, sat down by the corpse to watch and weep over the remains, till the legal inquiry should take place, and permission be accorded them to convey the dead Isusband and parent to their now desolate home in New-York,

The residence of deceased was in Tenth avenue, between Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth streets. We are informed that express trains dash through Yonkers at great speed, and as the citizens have to cross and recross the tracks in going to the two steamboat landings, they fear that, unless some precaution is taken, a wholesale destruction of life may some day be the con-

DIABOLICAL AND FIENDISH ATTEMPT TO DESTROY LIFE AND PROPERTY .- Sunday night, about 11 o'clock, the police of the Twenty-third Precinct discovered cobble stones laid on the track of the Hudson River Railroad, at short intervals, between One-hun ared-andecond and One-hundred-and-eighteenth st reets, having been placed there with a view to et etruct the train, which was expected to arrive at I', o'clock. Informaion was sent to Police Header arters, and orders were returned for the police of "de Twenty-third Precinct to guard the various static as along the line until the train should arrive. Bu, for the timely discovery by the police, the resolus of this foul play might have been sadly disastrous. It is only one week since a sleeper was placed across the track of the same road at Onehundred-and-ninth street, evidently for the same pur-

FREE LIBRARY.-The attention of apprentices is invited to the Apprentices' Library, No. 472 Broadway. This institution is well supplied with newspapers, reviews, magazines, pictorials, and with convenient tables and seats for readers. A exisiderable number of new works have also been recently purchased. It is required to be open from 2 to 3 o'clock p. m., but is generally open in the ferencon, also. All persons employed as apprentices by meckanics or tradesmen, and all females employed by them in their business, en presenting a proper certificate, may have the privileges of the library without charge; journeymen mechanics or tradesmen, teachers or pupils in schools or academics, young men in the offices of lawyers, physicians and artists, on the presentation of a proper certificate and the payment of $1 a year. The admission of semales to the privileges of this institution, though not a new feature, has not before been publicly announced. They are now invited to avail themselves of the oppor-tunity thus offered usefully and pleasantly to employ their leisure.

THE NEW STREET COMMISSIONER

To the Editor of The N. Y. Tribune.

Sir: I am acquainted with the new Street Commis sioner, Shepherd F. Knapp; I have known him for a number of years, and I must say that I regretted to see the unjust and un-called for allueion to him in The TRIBUNE a few days ago. It is true that Mr. Knapp is fond of a good horse, and for sught I know he may be fond of game chickens; but, before you prefer know he may be fond of game chickens; but, before you prefer those charges against a political opponent, it would be well to remember that your great political idol (and he was mine also), Henry Clay, was, to speak within bounds, certainly as fond of everything that possessed bloods and game as our new Street Commissioner. Mr. Knapp is a good citizen, an honest man, an excellent budness man, and a mun of considerable executive ability; and so long as he possesses those qualifications for his present position, I think it is hardly fair for a public print to assult him for his private ammements, whatever they may be, so long as they do not conflict with his public duties. I have nothing to gain from Mr. Knapp's appointment. You know that there is no favor or advantage that I want of him or any other public officer. I desire merely to do on set of justice toward a man who is, in my opiation, better qualified to fill the office of Street Commissioner than any of his predecessors of late years.

FAIR PLAY.

A TENEMENT HOUSE BRAWL.—Yesterday, notice was sent to the Coroner's office that Mrs. Bridget Riley, No. 15 Loonard street, was in a dying condition, and that her illusers was caused by Elien Bennis having inflicted several severe gashes on her body by throwing a whiskey bottle at her during an altercation which took place between them last Wednesday aftercoon. Elien was arrested, and unless Mrs. Riley gets better, will be in a bad predicament.

A FATAL FALL.—Yesterday, Coroner Jackman held an inquest on the body of Edward Conway, 24 years of see and a native of ireland, who died at Bellevoe Bospital from injuries received on his head last Saturday evening. It appears that he was at work on board the ship Ocean Monarch lying at the foot of Eighteenth street, North River, and that when jumping on a hatch to close it tightly it gave way and he was precipitated to the bottom of the hold. He never uttered a word after he fell through the hatch.

FOUND DROWNED .- On Monday morning Coroner Schirger held an inquest on the body of a man which was found floating in the water off Pier No. 13, North River. Deceased appeared to be about 35 years of age. He had several pieces of English coin in his pocket, and his clothing was paculiarly English, by a ticket found in the pocket of deceased, it appears that his name was Mr. Breatleu, and that he had taken passage by the packet ship Richard S. Ely, which was to have sailed on the 20th last.

ANOTHER THEED-STORY JUMP.—On Monday morning, about 5 o'clock, Minute Collins, a housek weper at No. 338 Peerl street, fell from a third-story window in the above premises, and fractured her skull. The police took her to the New York Hospital.

BODY RECOVERED.—The body of Mr. Robert Brad-ley, drowned off the Staten Island ferry-hoat, South; etd. On Thursday, 19th inst., was picked up by Capt. Conkills off Stapic-ton, yesterday afternoon, and brought into Stapleton.

UNKNOWS MAN DROWNED, -An unknown man fell from a vessel lying at the fact of Dover street, on Monday tmorn-log, and was drewned. His body has not yet been recovered.

LAURA KEENE'S THEATER. FALL OPENING AND SEVEN SONS.

It is a fact that unity is the greatest merit of a drama and that the class of plays ir, which are the "Seven Sisters" and " Seven Sons" effectively break it. They also dash down the simple and pure models of art. They also preclude the possibility of that close and ough delineation of character which is the best function of the staye. They also ignore the intellectual in actor and speciator, and give no chance to passion or sentiment. Jostead of reflecting a full vision of life they blur objects and distort even the fragments and chance ends of reality. They also help weakly people to a dangerous moral dyspersis, feeding them on rich spiced stuff, without due order in the dishes. There is also a redical weakness in them that makes the most mischies. They are without form and void, and darkness moves over the face of them, but it is worse than that that they let the standards of virtue trail. All such plays are doubtless the natural rebound from the forms and issues of the legitimate drama. People must be plunging about from one abyse to another; from devout psalmody to glaring infidelity, from patriotic conservatism to furious radicalism. And here lies the cheerful hope that there is no permanent power in the sensational drama, and the confidence that if Art is to advance this cannot stop it. If, however, the long diet of play-goers on orthodox and mild pieces proved wasting, and if the evenly strutting heroes and heroines of the five-act calibre had grown spectral, it should have been taken into the acount, when making the change for a style like this, that there were manifest advantages on the side of the old school. Those prim dramas were seldom without a moral purpose. They taught lessons. They made bonesty, simplicity, devotion and faith good things. Virtue was rewarded in "points" that always took and vice was hurled into ignominious darkness to loud and long continued applause. And to know how good the instincts of mankind are, it was only necessary to step into the theater about the time of the triumph of innocence, and to hear the prompt welcome of a nice old comfortable common-place exalting propriety. Colored fires, ganzy outlets of pretty forms, saucy women dancing and drilling, pointless but still penetrating jokes, liberties with sex, glittering heaps of scenery, dashing music, are the recompense for the oss of the simple old way. And then it is to be said forever that the right, the best, is not matter of comparison. There is something for the stage higher and much better than virtuous conventionality. One can think of exquisite comedy, with real wit, or, better still, real humor in it, and of dramas simple enough in form and sublime in motive.

The public is never obliged to apologize to itself for enjoying itself, nor to make lame compromises with its conscience, nor to engage in the nice balancing of principle against a patent fact. It is an independence which it seems fully to appreciate. The creature bates criticism, and would like its insensate laughter never to meet with a silent vacuum in the air. What pleases it is right, and it is forgotten that this is a gross falsehood which would not do in any other department than the artistic. It takes courage to say without bitterness, but with unaffected sympathy and concern, that taste in the theater should be cultivated in Americs, because the theater is so much of an agent in forming the national character; that the intellectual cannot be safely suborned to the physical; there is that which should please, and that which should displease, and that is no more difficult to realize on the stage than this. The sensation drama is not without its good, and a mere show for the eye is not to be refused, but it would be unfair to forget that it will be a time of delight when theater-goers will not care for "sensation," and that the age which produces earnest artists will also be the age of an earnest and heroic public.

The "Seven Sons" opened the season at Miss Keene's theater last night. The "Seven Sons" may end it. Miss Keene has so well adapted her company and her audience to the trash of the drama, that fortune smiles upon her efforts. This last is much more thorough than any before. Here the fair manager en ters the list for the championship of the outrageous without any reservation. The "Seven Sisters" was bold, and ran nearly a year. The Sons are as much bolder as their sex will warrant, and might run into another generation. There is a fearful mistake somewhere, but it is not Miss Laura Keene's. She must be convinced that she understands the public. She cries nonsense and absurdity, and the public rushes to her. She goes farther than she promises, and from being nonsensical, becomes pointedly rude, and still the ladies and gentlemen crowd about her with the savagest interest in their eyes.

We were incapable of seeing all the piece last night. It was partly a physical weakness. The house was too full. Fire there would have been a memorable massacre. The atmosphere was bad. Something in it reminded us of a prize-fight, or the lively scene of a fallen horse on Broadway stones, when gay promenaders pause and divert themselves with his struggles. A theatrical opening should give bright intellect play, should summon fancy and passion and imagination, and the theater should be charged with sympathy. A stolid curiosity, bespoken by thousands of open mouths, is a different feeling. We found the same melancholy study in the house which one gets out of brilliant decay in nature, or the subtle blight of health. Forecasting a whole season of the "Seven Sons" was not to rejoice in progress of taste, and a steady education. But still it was the moral weakness which abbreviated our experience of the new burletta. We have not ceased to enjoy handsome scenery and show, but they are not so attractive as to counterbalance the mortification of the spirit which we feel when noble sentiments are degraded, and good causes and earnest men are exposed to vulgar scorn. The "Seven Sons," in a vague effort to convey a national lesson, can find no better plan of glorifying a very lachrymose Columbia who wanders about through the piece like the very ghost of patriotism, than coarse abuse of England, and of all Americans who desire liberty for the slave. The Abolitionist appears in the guise of a snivelling Aminedab Sleek, and at him America, in the person of a New-York rowdy in a red flannel shirt, hurls her vengeance. The negro presents himself for the lash and exults over his plantation home, administering, at the same time, philosophical advice to the white race to mind their own business. Miss Keene will deem us severe if we use hard words about this prostration of truth and justice, and call her stage a shamble; but her "distinguished dramatist" has not spared the feelings of those who may have a higher standard of right than The New-York Herald, from the mendacious columns of which the first act of the burletta, at least, seems to have been compiled. O tempora! O mores! Can Americans really enjoy a travesty of the holiest truths their republicanism enfolds, and can decent people abide in egregious contentment a gross caricature of an English reporter? Is our true grandeur seated in the bosom of a rough fire-boy, and are dreary bemoanings over the grave of fallen soldiers and over the wrecks of business and the gloom of domestic life, sufficient to excuse the brutal insult to the idea of freedom and equality that is visited upon a false type of the Slavery-dreading and Slavery-despising American? Great expense has been incurred to produce the "Seven Sons." The first act shows much admirable scenery and mechanical effects of unusual cleverness. The dresses are brilliant without excuse of consistency. Anything and everything in character and incident are perpetrated. A patriotic current, whose waters are both bitter and sweet, dribbles through the groundwork of the indescribable plot. There are fantastic dances, drills, and longs-gleanings from concert-hall programmes, that embrace pretty waiter girls and strong drinks. We complain that the tone of the piece is so low. We lament sincerely that such resources as those of Miss Laura Keene should be lent to such a piece, or that there is apology for the regular installment of the class of entertainment in the City of New-York. The traditions are better than this. Better are the faded memorials of days it is spicy to ridicule

tion the poor compliment that they do the best they can. The ladies flounce and strut in unnatural attire. They assume low ways. We prefer to remember that we have seen all of them in situations of true dig nity, grace, and womanly tenderness. We will not admit that Miss Laura Keene is pursuing an artistic career when she acts as drill sergeant, with a shrill voice, to a corps of "pollywogs." We forbear to regard Miss Sarah Stevens's difficult burlesque whan the recollections of many sweet and charming things done by her are in our mind. Mrs. Allen is not firmly associated with spangles and bunkum. Nor have we, in general, an interest in those unnatural operations by which sex is perverted on the stage. The gentlemen are called upon to be essentially vulgar, and we find them, with all their ability, uninteresting. Mr. Daly, whom we remember as a promising young man, will not care to be remembered by posterity as the reprecentative of Jake Butt. And so we forbear to make the record. Demoralization may be the result of works like the Seven Sons." When a public resents criticism, when it is too callous to disapprove, when it showers its favors upon the unworthiest exhibitions, the same demoralization would seem to have set in which has made a mockery before of free institutions, and written ruin on the proudest estates.

MR. THURLOW WEED IN EXPLANATION.

We have already alluded to the subjoined article from The Albany Evening Journal of Saturday last; but, on consideration, it seems to us that justice to Mr. Weed requires that his defense should be published in our columns, in his own language:

But those who have been behind the scenes, as the Third-Avenue Railroad, know that there never was anything so lucrative in this constry as some of these roads. The stock is owned by a isw individuals. I believe Mr. Weed owns $60,000 of it, and George Law the greater part of all the rest.

THE TRIBUSE has been filled, for several days, with

THE TRIBUSE has been filled, for several days, with elaborately prepared matter connected with the Littlejohn libel suit, designed, evidently, less for the Court than for the public. Though in no way a party to the suit, The TRIBUSE and its counsel seek to impugn the senior editor of this journal. The paragraph quoted is a specimen. Upon its justice and fairness the public, with the facts, can decide.

The imputation is that we obtained city reilroad stock "corruptly." The fact is, that we purchased Second, Third and Sixth-Avenne Railroad stock at the Brokers' Board, where it is open; o all. We paid, seven or eight years ago, 80 per cent for 100 shares of Third-Avenne Kailroad stock, which soon fell to 24. It was carried, two or three years, without dividends, until the board was reorganized with better prospects, and then we purchased nore stock, in small lots, for 40, 50, 60 and 70 per cent. Under the auspices of Mr. Darling, its present efficient super-ntendent, the road 40, 50, 60 and 70 per cent. Under the auspices of art. Darling, its present efficient super intendent, the road has become alike useful to the public and remunerative to stockholders. In like manner we purchased stock in the Second and Sixth-Avenue roads. Every share of city railroad stock that we hold, or ever held, was purchased and paid for as others purchase it, in the

"I notice the name of Wm. A. Hall in one of these acts. I do not know what became of his stock. Wm. A. Hall is one of nature's noblemen; he didn't know that his name was in this bill till after it was passed. After the adjournment of the Legislaure the father of the lobby came to him and said: "You see your name is in this bill; we want a little money." "Money! What for "said Mr. Hall. "Oh "said he, "you know these things cost; these things cost—it is very valuable, Mr. Hall. "Well, Mr. Hall desined:" The veteran then applied to Mr. Hall te sell out his rights under the act—offered in the local cost. Mr. Hall desined:

(100. Mr. Hall declined." will not affect to misunderstand this imputation, offensive and indecent as it may be. We admit that Mr. Hall's name was placed, without his knowledge, Mr. Hall's name was placed, without his knowledge, in a railroad bill. We recognize him as a gentleman of truth and honor. And as such he is incapable of uttering untruths. It is not true that we ever said to Mr. Hall, in that connection, "we want a little money." It is not true that we "offered Mr. Hall $3,000 for his rights under the act." These are false-hoods of THE TRIBUSE, scattered, muliciously broadcast, among its hundred thousand renders. We have asked Mr. Hall, on other occasions, and for other pursues. "Ger a little money." but he never "declined"

poses, "for a little money," but he never "declined" or hesitated: "They have been trying from year to year to get these or simi "They have been trying from year to year to get these or similar bills through. In 1859 they succeeded in the House, and tost it in the Senate by only one or two votes. And when 1850 came round it became exceedingly important to carry these measures. It was known that the Legislature was Republican when elected. Those gentlemen of the lobby discovered that there was one giorious prefeat to put forward to reach a class of men who were strong politicians, and who thought politics and party were to be advanced a little over the head of some higher principles. They hit upon a plan for carrying it, it was worthy of its great author, the father of the lobby. They said: We propose now that the Legislature pass the Railroad bills, and out of these bills we will get the whole fund that we want to elect our President."

Obnoxious as the admission is to a just sense of right and to a better condition of political ethics, we stand so far "impenched." We would have preferred not to disclose to public view the financial history of political life, nor should The Tribusys have constrained such disclosures. Public men know much of what the political life, nor should The Tribuse have constrained such disclosures. Public men know much of what the "rest of mankind" are ignorant. We suppose it is generally understood that party organizations cost money, and that Presidential elections especially are expensive. Painful as the confession is, we are bound in truth, and from knowledge, to say that James Buchanan was elected President, and this great and then happy and glorious Republic ruined, simply because Messrs. Wendell Forney, and Belmont raised $50,000 more money to be expended in Pennsylvania than Wm. A. Hall, Truman Smith, and the writer of this article Hall, Truman Smith, and the Wr. could procure for the same object. While millions of freemen exert their influence and cast their votes from patriotic influences, results are too often controlled by less creditable means. Nor are the uppatriotic found less creditable means. Nor are the mapatriotic found alone among the ignorant and base. The wealthy and exalted are quite as ready as the low and abject to pollute the elective franchise.

It has been our duty and task for nearly forty years to raise money for elections. During more than half that time we did so in consultation and cooperation with Mr. Greeley. Believing that rairroads were essential to the City of New-York, and that Legislative grants for them would be obtained, we conceived and attempted to carry out the idea of making those grants available politically. We did so with Mr. Greeley's knowledge, and he did not then see the enormity of the offense. We avowed this purpose to leading political friends. Among others to Mr. George Opdyke, with the remark that while the avowal was not for the public, we had no desire to conceal it from assethe public, we had no desire to conceal it from asso-ciates. It so happened that the avowal appeared in the next morning's Herald!

But if we have sinned in this way, Mr. Greeley ought not to "cast the first stone." He has not always been fastidious in the use of money at elections, or in Legislation. He knows how much it cost—and or in Legislation. He knows now much it cort—and out of whose pockets the money came—to elect a Speaker in Congress? He knows how he expected to be reimbursed. He knows for what purpose a $1,000 heck was banded to him. And he knows—as we believe—that while in this latter particular he was blameless—how easy it is to mystify and malign—how wiftly falsehood travels, and how tardily truth fol-
